Report on the Guest Lecture Organized by Gautam College of Pharmacy on Human Rights Day

Event Title: Guest Lecture on Human Rights Awareness

Organiser: Gautam College of Pharmacy

Date: 10th December 2024

Venue: Gautam College of Pharmacy

Guest Speaker: Advocate Amit Sharma, Human Rights Advocate Distt. Court Hamirpur H.P

Attendees: Students, Faculty Members, and Staff of Gautam College of Pharmacy

Introduction

On the occasion of Human Rights Day, Gautam College of Pharmacy organized a guest lecture to raise awareness about human rights and their significance in the modern world. The event aimed to educate students and faculty about the basic rights that every individual is entitled to, regardless of race, gender, or social status, as well as to encourage a proactive attitude toward upholding these rights in society. The lecture was held in the college auditorium on December 10, 2024, and was attended by both students and faculty members.

Objective of the Event

The primary objective of the event was to commemorate Human Rights Day by highlighting the importance of human rights in daily life, especially in the context of healthcare and pharmacy. It also aimed to sensitize the audience to global issues related to human rights violations and inspire them to take action in their professional and personal lives to advocate for human dignity and equality.

The Guest Speaker

Advocate Amit Sharma, a well-known human rights advocate, was invited as the guest speaker for the event. Dr. Sharma has a distinguished career in promoting human rights at national and international forums and has worked with various organizations dedicated to human welfare and justice. With years of experience in this field, Dr. Sharma brought a wealth of knowledge and passion to the lecture, making the event insightful and impactful.

Key Highlights of the Lecture

Understanding Human Rights:

Dr. Sharma began the lecture by explaining the concept of human rights, emphasizing that these rights are inherent to all human beings, irrespective of nationality, ethnicity, religion, or any other status. He mentioned that the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, adopted by the United Nations in 1948, is the cornerstone document that sets out fundamental human rights that must be protected worldwide.

Human Rights and Healthcare:

A significant portion of the lecture was dedicated to discussing the intersection of human rights and healthcare. Dr. Sharma explained that access to healthcare is a fundamental human right. He encouraged students in the field of pharmacy to recognize their role in ensuring that everyone, regardless of their background, receives the care and medication they need. He also touched on ethical issues such as access to medicines, patient confidentiality, and healthcare discrimination.

Challenges in Protecting Human Rights:

Dr. Sharma highlighted the challenges faced in the protection of human rights, including political oppression, discrimination, and economic inequality. He discussed the importance of legal frameworks and international cooperation in safeguarding these rights.

Role of Students and Young Professionals:

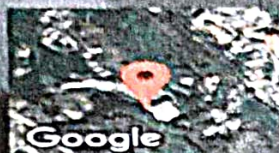

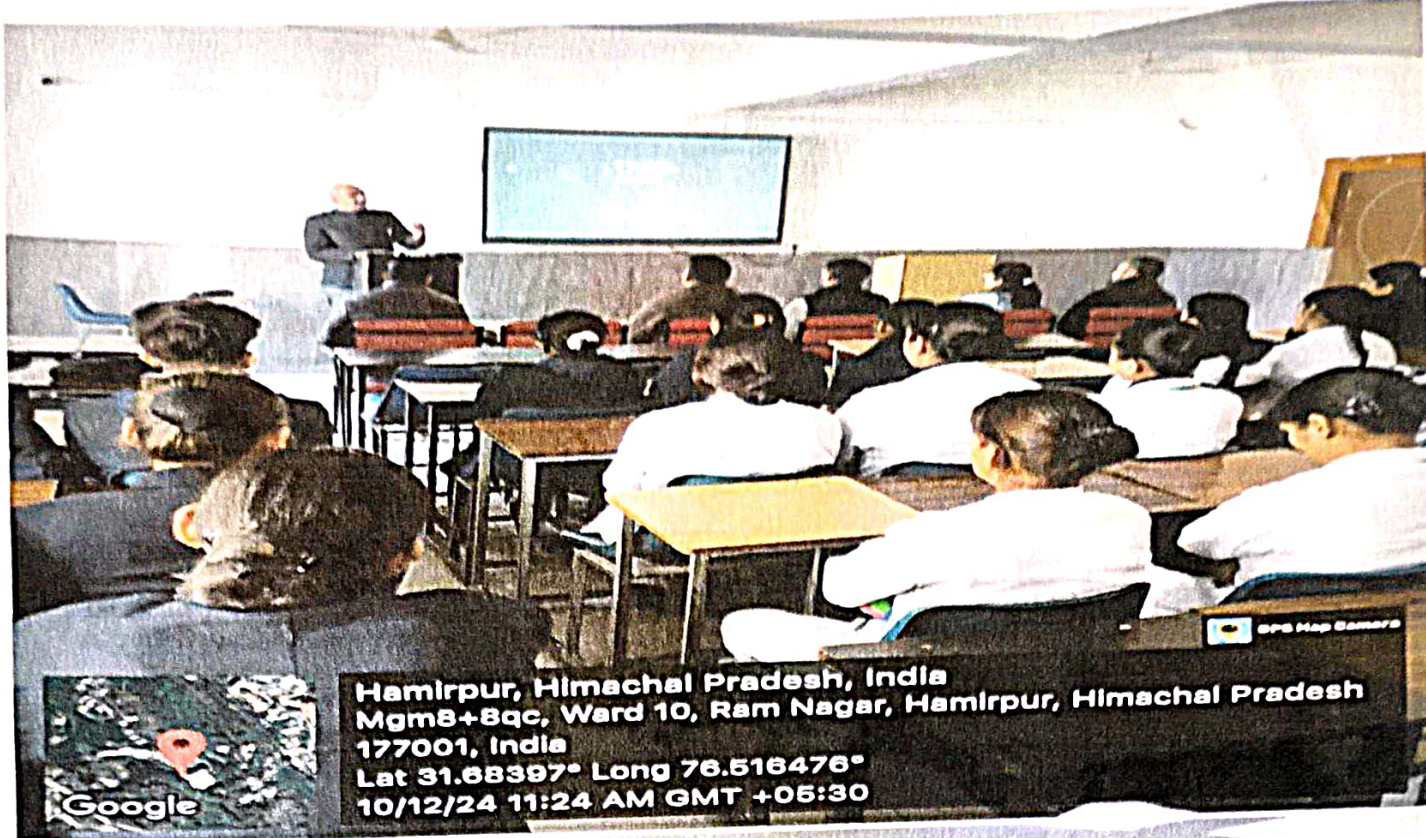

Dr. Sharma called upon the students to be active participants in promoting human rights, both in their personal lives and professional careers. He emphasized that as future healthcare professionals, they have a responsibility to ensure ethical practices and advocate for the rights of their patients and communities.

Real-life Case Studies:

The lecture also included real-life case studies that illustrated both violations of human rights and successful efforts to protect them. Dr. Sharma shared stories from various parts of the world where individuals or groups fought against oppression and injustice, inspiring the audience to take similar steps in their own capacities.

Interactive Session

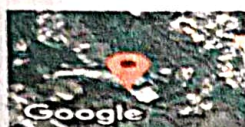

After the lecture, an interactive session was held where students and faculty had the opportunity to ask questions and share their thoughts. The discussion was lively, with students expressing their concerns about current human rights issues, particularly in healthcare. Dr. Sharma provided insightful answers and encouraged everyone to engage in advocacy, whether through education, community service, or supporting relevant causes.

- Advocate Amit Sharma giving guest lecture on the occasion of Human Rights Day

Conclusion

The guest lecture organized by Gautam College of Pharmacy on Human Rights Day was a resounding success. It served as an important reminder of the value of human dignity and the responsibility that everyone must protect and uphold the rights of others. The lecture inspired students and faculty alike to reflect on their role in promoting human rights and to take concrete steps toward a more just and equitable society.

The event ended with a vote of thanks, and participants were encouraged to take forward the knowledge and insights gained from the lecture into their daily lives and careers.
