Report on Guest Lecture on National Vaccination Day

Date: 16th March 2025

Venue: Online Mode

Topic: "National Vaccination Day"

Speaker: Ms. Kumari Versha, Gautam College of Pharmacy, Hamirpur

Introduction

In celebration of National Vaccination Day, Gautam College of Pharmacy organized an online guest lecture on 16th March 2025. National Vaccination Day is observed to raise awareness about vaccination, highlight its role in disease prevention, and garner support for the control, elimination, or eradication of vaccine-preventable diseases. The event aimed to educate students and faculty members on the significance of vaccines and their role in maintaining public health.

Lecture Overview

Ms. Kumari Versha began the lecture by emphasizing the significance of National Vaccination Day and its historical background. The session aimed to educate students about the importance of vaccination, its role in eradicating infectious diseases, and the latest developments in immunization programs.

The lecture was divided into several key segments:

1. Historical Perspective on Vaccination – The origins of vaccines and their impact on public health.
2. Role of Vaccines in Disease Prevention – How immunization programs have helped control various infectious diseases.
3. Current Vaccination Programs in India – Government initiatives, immunization schedules, and policies.
4. Challenges in Vaccine Administration – Issues related to vaccine hesitancy, accessibility, and misinformation.
5. Future of Vaccination – Advances in vaccine technology and research in the pharmaceutical sector.

Highlights

- The lecture provided valuable insights into how vaccines work and their role in preventing outbreaks of life-threatening diseases.
- Ms. Kumari Versha highlighted India's contribution to global vaccination efforts and discussed the latest developments in vaccine research.
- The session also addressed the importance of community participation in vaccination drives and debunked myths surrounding vaccines.
- An interactive Q&A session allowed students to clarify their doubts and gain deeper knowledge about vaccine safety and efficacy.
